

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

MORRIS WEATHERSPOON,
#471817,

Plaintiff,

v.

DINSA, et al.,

Defendants.

CIVIL ACTION NO. 14-12756

DISTRICT JUDGE LAURIE J. MICHELSON

MAGISTRATE JUDGE R. STEVEN WHALEN

---

ORDER

Plaintiff, proceeding pro se in this civil rights action brought under 42 U.S.C. §1983, has filed a motion for appointment of counsel [Doc. #87].

Unlike criminal cases, there is no constitutional or statutory right to the appointment of counsel in civil cases. Rather, the Court requests members of the bar to assist in appropriate cases. In Lavado v. Keohane, 992 F.2d 601, 605-606 (6th Cir. 1993), the Sixth Circuit noted that “[a]ppointment of counsel in a civil case is not a constitutional right. It is a privilege that is justified only by exceptional circumstances.” (Internal quotations and citations omitted).

It is the practice of this Court to defer any attempt to obtain counsel for pro se civil rights Plaintiffs until after motions to dismiss or motions for summary judgment have been denied. Because there are such motions pending, Plaintiff’s request for counsel is premature. If Plaintiff's claims ultimately survive dispositive motions, he may renew his motion for appointment of counsel at that time.

Accordingly, Plaintiff's motion to appoint counsel [Doc. #87] is DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
